

I have had the pleasure of being a committee member of Wine, Women & Shoes benefitting Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida since its inception in 2011. Introduced to the event and organization by a friend (an avid supporter of Second Harvest Food Bank) who knew of my desire to get involved with our community and my passion for event planning. Retired from the corporate world and now a stay at home Mom of two children, it has been the perfect fit. As a third year veteran and this year's Co-Chair of WWS 2013, I am helping support Second Harvest's efforts in not only raising money but also in raising awareness to other charity-minded women within Central Florida. With the combined efforts of our dedicated committee members, generous donations from our Sponsors and guests who love to "sip and shop" this signature event has proven successful in supporting Second Harvest's mission to fight hunger.

THE WOMEN BEHIND WINE, WOMEN & SHOES.

Kelly Green and Susan Walker have been leading behind-the-scenes of Wine, Women & Shoes long enough. We decided to see how the girls in white do their job in order to be ready for the weekly "shop-a-lot".

The women describe the annual fundraiser, which combines wine and beauty lessons to benefit the Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida, which feeds the hungry through the nonprofit's operations in Orlando, Tampa, and the Lake County and Polk counties.

Both, vice presidents of marketing at Citrus Communities Group, the Tampa-based Internet company for the past three years in the state, for over a decade, Walker & Green reflect on their story.

The event raises all the proceeds to support all initiatives such as hunger relief, food banks, and the 100,000 pounds of food donated.

Both are wearing a white (WWS) shirt with black and white patterned skirt. Kelly is wearing a coral statement necklace, $200, a coral and black bag, $50, and a gold hair statement ring, $50, all by Red at the boutique at 1401-1403 Avenue of the Palms in Ft. Lauderdale. The coral jewelry is Kelly's own.

When it comes to the annual fashion show by the WWS, the women were busy by the time the show started. Kelly and Susan were busy by the time the show started. Kelly and Susan were busy by the time the show started. Kelly and Susan were busy by the time the show started.
